Meeting Green Communities criteria

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset could soon begin the process of becoming a certified "Green Community" through the statewide Green Communities Act, which launched the state's Green Communities Division.

The program provides grants to qualifying communities to fund energy efficiency initiatives and innovative renewable energy projects.

Cohasset's Alternative Energy Committee (AEC) is exploring several energy-efficient projects, from solar panels on the town landfill on Cedar Street to retrofitting the town's streetlights to LED fixtures. But what else can the town do to clean up its act, energy-wise?

Seth Pickering of the state Department of Energy Resources (DOER) presented to the AEC at their Monday, Sept. 8 meeting, outlining the five steps Cohasset needs to take in order to become a Green Community.

Becoming a Green Community would make Cohasset eligible for a first-time grant of around $140,000 with an additional $10,000 for the installation of solar panels at the landfill, as long as the photovoltaic (PV) array has a capacity of 250,000 kilowatts.

"Being a 'Green Community' affords Cohasset the opportunity to obtain grants for various projects through the DOER," said AEC co-chair Shaun Selha.

"The initial grant could be upwards of $150,000 that the Town could use to revamp fleet vehicles, retrofit the streetlights, or enact some of the energy conservation measures identified in the Energy Audit Reports. After the initial grant offering the Town would be eligible to

Ahoy, there

In a sight that has not been seen for some 400 years, Captain John Smith arrives in Cohasset Harbor on Saturday afternoon (Sept. 13). This time Smith was greeted by the townspeople of Cohasset who waited with great excitement by the restored pavilion on Lawrence Wharf. Joe Hamilton, a 41-year resident of Cohasset, portrayed Smith for this event. Smith arrived on an exact replica of a ship's boat from the Mayflower. For more see A8 & A9. ## MCAS stays

Board votes to keep test

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

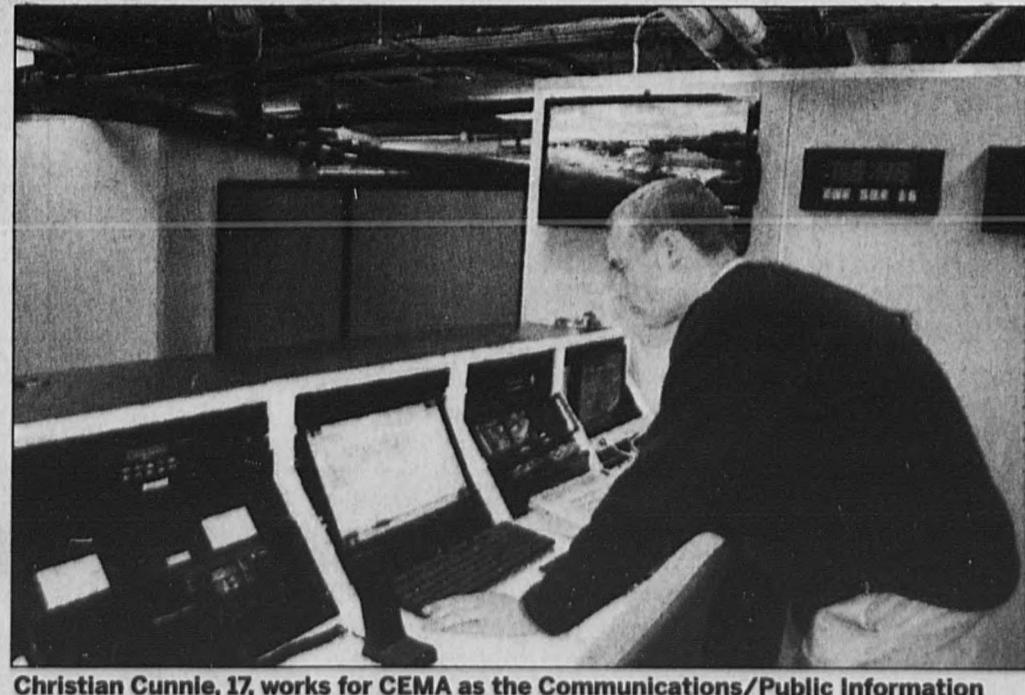

The Cohasset School Committee voted Wednesday night to keep the MCAS rather than switch to the PARCC next year.

The school board took the summer to decide whether or not to swap the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) standardized test for the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC), which is being developed to correlate with federal Common Core standards for math and English competency.

School districts around the state have the option of test-driving the PARCC for grades three through eight next spring in place of MCAS. Districts had until June 30 to get in the early sign-up queue for the PARCC; the state Department of Education will vote in October on whether PARCC will be the new test moving forward.

READY FOR ACTION Cohasset has emergency response team in place

By Erin Dale

In the event of an emergency, weather-related or otherwise, Cohasset has a fully operational Emergency Operations Center (EOC) – in the basement of the Deer Hill elementary school.

A school basement may seem like an unlikely place to house such an operation, but it makes sense logically; during a blizzard, hurricane, storm or other crisis, the school

POLICE BEAT

Road rage leads to broken side mirror

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Road rage

A 46-year-old Hull man went to the police station on Sunday morning (Sept. 14) to report that a man on a motorcycle had pulled up next to him on lower King Street and punched the side mirror to his 2011 Buick Enclave, breaking it. He provided police with the license plate number on the motorcycle and police contacted the motorcyclist who is 43 years old and from Yarmouth. He readily admitted to breaking the mirror, explaining he was upset with the way the man in the Buick was driving. He said he was willing to pay for the mirror and apologized for losing his temper. Police said computer checks showed he had no history of this activity.

The victim told police he would be consider the matter closed if his mirror was replaced.

Arrest

A 35-year-old Cohasset woman was arrested for drunken driving after she drove off Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) just north of Beechwood Street around 6 p.m. on Monday (Sept. 15).

Police said Maryellen Casey of 2802 Skyview Way, who was still behind the wheel when they arrived, had alcohol on her breath and was exhibiting the signs and symptoms of intoxication. There was an empty liquor bottle on the front seat. Police received multiple 9-1-1 calls about the accident.

The 2012 Jeep Patriot that Casey was driving hit a Route 3A traffic sign before leaving the road. Mass-DOT was contacted and will replace the sign.

Police said Casey refused medical attention and was arrested at the scene and transported to the station. She was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, negligent operation of a motor vehicle and failure to stay in marked lanes. She was arraigned on the charges Tuesday at Quincy District Court and was released on personal recognition. She will return to court for a pretrial hearing.

Gas payment

Police investigated a report from the clerk at the Stop & Shop gas station off Route 3A on Monday evening about a motorist driving off without paying for $55.11 worth of gasoline. As it turned out the 40-year-old Scituate man who stopped to get gas for his 2012 Toyota Tacoma did not realize the transaction did not go through. When he found out, he returned to the gas station and paid the bill, police said. They were able to locate him by running the license plate of the Tacoma provided by the clerk.

Common parking

Police got a complaint last week that they are ticketing cars illegally parked near Milliken Field on Bancroft Road and Norfolk Road, but ignoring the cars illegally parked around the Town Common.

Police said they did ticket numerous cars over the prior weekend near the playing field that were blocking driveways and sidewalks. They advised the caller that there is a moratorium on parking enforcement around the common while the town studies parking issues in the downtown area.

Vantage point

Police have had several reports about a raccoon that has taken up a vantage point along the front overhang of the building that houses the Pink Tulip on Depot Court over the past week. The Animal Control Officer checked it out and said the animal appeared to be fine and should be left alone for now.

Car entered

After a citizen found a wallet with credit cards along Atlantic Avenue on Tuesday (Sept. 9), the desk officer contacted the owner of the wallet. The man who is 62 and lives on Atlantic Avenue went to the station and reported that his 2009 GMC Envoy had been entered. Missing were a flashlight and two sets of keys. The incident is under investigation. Police said he had not suffered any financial loss from the credit cards that had been missing.

Overheated

Police received several 9-1-1 calls about a car fire on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) last Wednesday (Sept. 10) around 1:38 p.m. As it turned out the 1994 Chevrolet pickup truck had overheated and was smoking. The fire department response was cancelled. Police called for a tow truck.

Obscene gestures

Several calls came into the dispatch center on Wednesday (Sept. 10) around 2:38 p.m. about a young female driver in a mini-van giving other motorists the finger near the Stop and Shop gas station on Route 3A. The plate came back to a Scituate woman and police suspect her daughter was driving the vehicle.

Outside wedding

Police received a report last Wednesday (Sept. 10) about 100 folding chairs and a wicker arbor set up outside at the Red Lion Inn near the wooden fence by the S. Main Street neighbors for an apparent wedding. The manager of the inn told police that they have been holding weddings outside for the past three months. Police passed that information on to the Board of Selectmen, which is the licensing board, to determine if outside weddings are allowed.

Revoked registration

An officer monitoring

the store without paying for the food. Detectives are investigating. The store has a grainy video photo of the man exiting the store with the shopping carriage.

Dispute

Police responded to calls from the Cohasset Harbor Inn on Sunday morning (Sept. 14) around 1:30 a.m. Two brothers, ages 21 and 17 from Southbridge, were staying at the inn after attending their father's wedding. They got into an argument but there was no physical interaction. Police spoke to the brothers and peace was restored.

SCHOOL

CHS graduation date changed

Ceremony remains at Music Circus

By Erin Dale

edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset High School's senior class graduation will once again take place under the Big Top next June.

The School Committee voted Wednesday night to change the graduation date to Saturday, June 6 2015 (from Saturday, June 13), after Vince Longo, Executive Producer of the South Shore Music Circus, offered to let the school use the venue on that date, free of charge.

Longo "considers graduation to be a community event that the Music Circus always wants to be a part of," said Superintendent Barbara Cataldo.

During the Sept. 3 meeting, the school board discussed changing either the graduation date or the venue due to a conflict with the MIAA's calendar, with playoff sports games taking place on June 13.

"Last time we met, we had a lot of spirited discussion about the graduation, whether to have it in town or not have it in town, to have it on the second Saturday [of June] or not," Cataldo summarized.

High School principal Carolyn Connolly had been asked to conduct a survey while Cataldo agreed to meet with Longo.

Cataldo said she hadn't had a chance to meet with Connolly prior to the school board meeting Wednesday night to tell her about Longo's offer.

The new graduation date does not "interfere with anything" else on the calendar, said Cataldo. This past June, the school tried to plan graduation around the boys' lacrosse championship game out of concern student athletes would have to choose between playing in the game and walking at graduation.

The ceremony's start time of 1:30 p.m. was finalized on the Wednesday night before graduation, once it was confirmed that the lacrosse team would play after graduation at 7:30 p.m.

"If teams in the future have a successful season like this past one, we would continue to have conflicts with graduation asking students to choose between graduation and play off games," Cataldo said in an email Thursday morning.

"That is something we would prefer not to do."

Cataldo said she would write a thank you note to Longo on behalf of herself and the committee.

School Committee chair Paul Ognibene called it "great news."

"It's just another community institution helping out... it's very generous and we thank the Music Circus and all their efforts," Ognibene said.

"He did a lot of work to get this done," school board vice-chair Paul Schubert said of Longo, adding that the SSMC "is a facet of our community that's been around a long time. I'm one of their neighbors, and they're a great neighbor."

Schubert said he looks forward to seeing the SSMC's tent go up each year. "It's a wonderful tradition for Cohasset."

MCAS

voted in June to hold off on making a decision, waiting to see how other districts would vote.

Superintendent Barbara Cataldo said Wednesday night that she has some concerns with PARCC, noting that states around the country are backing out.

"A number of states have dropped out of PARCC at this point," said Cataldo. "It's below 15 [states] right now; it was supposed to be the whole country."

Louise Demas, Director of Curriculum, said that the only New England state that is still planning to give PARCC is Rhode Island; other states will give another Common Core-developed test called

Smarter Balance.

"It sounds like a breakfast cereal," said school board member Jeanne Astino.

School board member Helene Lieb wondered why the board hadn't been apprised on this other option. Cataldo explained that Smarter Balance "is not being entertained in Massachusetts."

The superintendent said that regardless of whether the state gets on board with PARCC, the MCAS is being phased out in favor of a different standardized test.

However, Cataldo doesn't like the idea of having students take the PARCC this spring and a different test the following year.

"We now don't know if the PARCC will hold any longer," said Cataldo. "We are concerned about making that switch and then making ## another switch."

The board voted 3-2 in favor of sticking with MCAS.

Lieb cast one of the dissenting votes, along with school board vice-chair Paul Schubert.

"We both support a test that deals with the Common Core," said Lieb. "The MCAS doesn't"

Schubert wanted the schools to give PARCC a try, since districts that give the test next spring will be held harmless if students don't score well. Cohasset, for instance, would not lose its standing as a top-ranking district.

"It's basically a free pass, and I think it's extraordinarily helpful... to test the technology," said Schubert, adding, "We've got a great school... I think no matter what test is given, [students] will do well."

receive additional grants on a project by project basis every year."

The town must satisfy five criteria in order to earn the Green Community designation:

- Provide "As-of-Right Siting," where chosen sites can be developed without the need for special permitting, for renewable or alternative energy generating facilities.

AEC member Mary Jo Larson agreed to forward the Town By-Law to Pickering for the DOER to rule on whether or not the bylaw satisfies the "As-of-Right Siting" criteria. If not, the town could designate the landfill as an "As-of-Right Siting" area for a solar array.

- Adopt an expedited application process for renewable/alternative energy projects;

The AEC planned to touch base with the town's Director of Project Management and Planning Brian Joyce as well as the Building Department to verify that Cohasset has satisfied the application process for the solar panel project.

- Establish an energy use baseline for municipal buildings and schools, all vehicles and town-owned street and traffic lights, and plan to reduce energy consumption by 20 percent within five years;

Selha explained that the committee would check with Town Manager Chris Senior to verify that log-in credential paperwork has been submitted to DOER and credentials are obtained for MassEnergyInsight system, for applicable town employees to access.

- Purchase only fuel-efficient vehicles for municipal use, whenever possible (excluding police vehicles and heavy-duty vehicles over 8500 pounds);

The town has already made a commitment to replace vehicles that are no longer usable with more fuel-efficient equivalents.

- Minimize construction life cycle costs and adopt the Board of Building Regulations and Standards Stretch Code, which must be voted on by Town Meeting.

Larson volunteered to arrange a meeting between town officials, the building department and DOER to review the differences between the Stretch Code (which is only applicable to the energy section of the Building Code) and the state's new Base Code, which went into effect in July. Town Meeting would need to adopt a bylaw for the Stretch Code (historic homes would be exempt), said Pickering.

As of June 2014, 143 municipalities have adopted the stretch code, according to the DOER, including neighboring Scituate.

While the AEC waits to see if Cohasset can and will become a Green Community, the committee is making strides in initiatives to increase energy-efficiency.

Palmer Capital, the vendor that won the bid to install a PV array on the landfill, submitted comments on the model Landfill Power Purchase Agreement (PPA) and Site Lease Agreements on August 2, which was reviewed by Town Counsel Mark Kalpin. Kalpin submitted his comments on August 28.

The AEC formed a subcommittee to review all of the comments in order to ensure the terms are acceptable. All comments were due by Monday, Sept. 15 to the committee; Selha said they were submitted to Palmer Capital for final approval on Tuesday morning.

"If they agree to the revisions, the contract can get signed. If they have additional comments there will be another round of back and forth," said Selha.

Once an agreement has been reached, the final design plans for the panels can be completed, then the interconnection application must be accepted by National Grid. Once that and a Landfill Post Closure Use Application and an Assurance of Qualification for Solar Renewable Energy Credits (SREC) are completed, the equipment will be ordered and construction on the solar panels can begin.

Joyce reported to the committee that energy audits have been completed at all major municipal facilities, including the Town Hall, schools and police and fire stations. The project management director expects to receive a report from National Grid by the end of the month.

The audits could help the town achieve a 20-percent energy reduction and satisfy the Green Communities requirement.

"Currently, Cohasset is considering National Grid's offer to fund the energy conservation measure implementations and in turn charge a premium on the electric costs," Selha explained. "As long as this premium still results in an overall reduction in total electric costs based upon consumption reduction, this is a win-win situation with no capital outlay."

EMERGENCY

The EOC functions as more than a place to house emergency and medical supplies – there is also a dispatch station that is linked to the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), a telecommunications center that is equipped for live broadcasts, along with plenty of classroom-style desks and chairs for training and strategy sessions, and even a command center conference room.

"In an emergency, the Emergency Operations Center is the central coordination point for everything that goes on in town," said Glenn Pratt, Director of the Cohasset Emergency Management Agency (CEMA), which works out of the EOC.

The center functions as a gathering point for "the town manager, chiefs, harbormaster emergency management, board of health – everything comes out of here," Pratt explained.

The EOC also has direct access to MEMA for all of the latest information during an event; then CEMA gets the message out.

"This is where it all happens; we decide what public information to send out," whether through a mass notification call, also called a "Reverse 9-1-1" call, cable broadcast, Facebook update or Tweet."

Working alongside the police and fire chiefs, Pratt also works with the town's Community Emergency Response Team (CERT), which is headed by Richard Hynes. CERT is a group of volunteers who are trained in disaster response and equipped to assist CEMA during emergencies.

CERT training is designed to prepare citizens to help their families, neighbors, and colleagues in the event of a catastrophic disaster. Because emergency services personnel are not always able to get to everyone immediately, CERT members make a difference by using skills learned to save lives and protect property.

CERT training covers basic skills that are important to know when emergency services are not available, including First Aid, fire extinguishing, triage and Search and Rescue.

Hynes said that basic CERT training takes nine weeks, with 2½ hours per week. One class recently completed its training with a final on Saturday, Sept. 6. The group conducted an intense training exercise.

"We blacked out this room so there was no light at all," said Hynes. "There was smoke and darkness, and victims all over the place."

During the final, past CERT graduates are invited to participate again, either as victims or part of the response team.

Cohasset now has 38 trained CERT volunteers.

One of the best parts about being CERT certified, perhaps, is that the training is universal.

"All the training material comes from FEMA," the Federal Emergency Management Agency, said Hynes. "All 'CERTs' around the country are trained the same way; everybody knows the rules and what our limits are."

It's important to note, however, that CERTs are not allowed to act without checking in with CEMA during a disaster.

"There is no self-deployment," said Hynes. "They report here and are dispatched to certain locations."

One role could be conducting checks on elderly residents, either by phone or in person, for example.

"You never know what you're going to be asked to do," said Pratt.

And while the training is the same for all CERTs, there is something that sets Cohasset's group of volunteers apart.

Cohasset's CERT recently became the only CERT in the state to be trained to watch and report downed wires, which is what National Grid's storm assignment does.

"We're the first in the state to watch wires down," said Hynes. "Aside from keeping people safe, this frees up the police and fire department" to attend to other matters during emergencies.

"We only have 18 cops and 20 firemen," said Pratt. Having a team of 38 CERT volunteers "fills up a lot of holes on the manpower side of emergency management."

And the one thing everyone is clamoring for during an emergency event? Information, said Pratt.

Christian Cunnie, 17, a Cohasset High School senior and Police Department intern, also works for CEMA as the Communications/Public Information program intern.

Cunnie is in charge of CEMA's social media accounts on Twitter and Facebook, and posts regular updates, from weather reports and power outages to road closures and school cancellations, along with photos.

"The biggest issue in some towns is not having a dedicated social media feed with information that's reliable and true," said Cunnie, adding that he is constantly "posting and pushing information out."

What's next for CEMA and the EOC? Gearing up for winter storms – and making sure the town's generators are fully functional. CEMA will hold a drill on Sept. 27 "to see if we can employ these generators and if they work."

As far as disaster preparedness goes, Cohasset appears to be ahead of the game.

"We're pretty proud of the operations here," said Hynes. "For being such a small town, it's amazing what we've done."

Sprinklers possible for the Sailing Club

Town awaits state ruling

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Construction on the new Cohasset Sailing Club is near completion; the exterior was finished a few weeks ago, while the interior should be completed by the end of October.

The old clubhouse was razed late last fall, after the Spring 2012 Annual Town Meeting voted to fund $260,000 toward the $500,000 project using Community Preservation monies. The Sailing Club raised an additional $240,000, with contributions from over 200 individuals and families.

Members of the Sailing Club's Board of Trustees attended the Community Preservation Committee (CPC) meeting on Monday and gave an update on the project.

The trustees reported that one issue could stall the construction: town officials are debating whether or not the new building must have sprinklers installed.

Building Inspector Bob Egan ruled that the building does not need a sprinkler system, due to its intended use and occupancy load, but Fire Chief Robert Silvia appealed that decision to the state's building appeals board.

Egan said in a phone call that he made his ruling based on his interpretation of the state building code.

Per the code, a structure that is classified as "A-2," which is what the Sailing Club has been designated, have a sprinkler system, if there are more than 100 occupants.

The building inspector explained that the A-2 assembly use group for facilities includes restaurants, bars, taverns, and banquet halls.

"For that kind of a use group, if the occupant load was over 100, it would have to have an automatic fire suppression system," said Egan.

However, the building inspector said that the Sailing Club trustees have indicated that they do not plan to have over 80 occupants in the building, even if they rent it for events.

"The club hopes there will be times to rent it out to individuals for different kinds of social events, but they would not have more than 80 [occupants], according to their planned use," Egan continued. "That would be their ultimate maximum... Being below 100 would not require a sprinkler system."

The trustees reported that one issue could stall the construction: town officials are debating whether or not the new building must have sprinklers installed.

Commander T. J. O'Brien, who chairs the Sailing Club's Building Committee, said that the trustees want to rent the building as a function facility to pay for maintenance costs; however, that "seemed to kick off" the sprinkler debate.

Silvia said in a phone call that he interprets the building code differently than Egan.

"They have requested this building classification as an A-2; that is an assembly usage intended for food and drink for banquet halls, clubs, and restaurants. The intention is to rent out [the building] when they're not using it as an educational facility," said Silvia.

"There are all these regulations within the building code," Silvia added. "As small as the building might be, that's what the A-2 designation is."

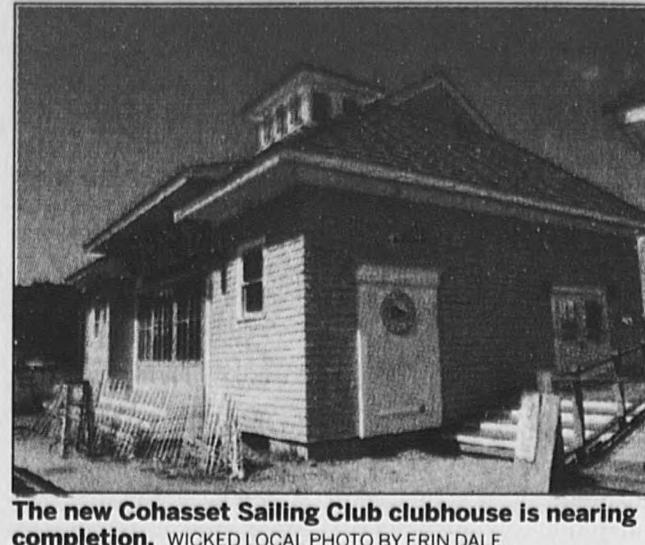

The fire chief said that if the occupancy load is in fact kept under 100 people at all times, "It will not be required by law to sprinkle the building."

The state will have the final say on the matter, while the building inspector and fire chief must "agree to disagree [and] allow a third party to look at this," said Silvia. "We want to make sure we're doing everything the proper way."

While it may seem that, "as fire chief, I believe every town building should be sprinkled, that's not what I'm trying to enforce right now," said Silvia.

CPC chairman Russ Bonetti said that he's inclined to side with the chief on this one, having lost a sister-in-law to a fire. "Fire safety cannot be taken seriously enough, in my opinion."

As the town awaits the state's determination,

the Sailing Club must wait to complete interior construction.

"It's out of our hands, basically," said Sailing Club Trustee Sandy Crough. "We're waiting for them to agree."

O'Brien hopes construction will finish on schedule.

"I really want the building perfected and want heat on for winter," he said. "We want to finish in October; that's the goal."

O'Brien said that Town Manager Chris Senior asked the Sailing Club to find out how much it would cost to install a sprinkler system; there is no water line to Government Island, where the Sailing Club is located, so that would contribute to the costs.

O'Brien said it would cost around $72,000 total.

The trustees and CPC members discussed the Lightkeepers House, which is also located on Government Island, and does not have a sprinkler system.

CPC member Susan Sardina said she presumed the Lightkeepers has been "grandfathered."

Egan said in a phone call that the Lightkeepers possible occupant load is 125, however, "They have taken it upon themselves to limit it to 80."

Diane Kennedy, Selectmen chair and liaison to the CPC, noted that there is no hydrant on Government Island; CPC member Alex Koinos said perhaps the town should put a hydrant there.

Kennedy said this could be considered for a Town Meeting article. The selectmen chair added that she knows the town manager, building inspector and fire chief have been "meeting endlessly" to resolve this issue all summer.

The preference seems to be to install sprinklers, in order to "make this building as safe as possible," and find a way to fund it so the Sailing Club isn't on the hook for the whole cost.

"I think anyone would agree to sprinkler any building regardless of its size or use," said Kennedy. "That's the gold standard."

Egan said that no matter what happens, he hopes the matter is resolved soon, and doesn't put a damper on the Sailing Club's project.

"I think it's been a pretty dedicated group of volunteers that found out there's more to [the project] than they originally hoped," said Egan. "They've been very conscientious and sincere... and, even though they don't feel the sprinkler system is necessary, they've gone through the exercise of getting estimates."

Kennedy said likewise during the CPC meeting, hoping that this minor issue doesn't take away from the project overall.

"The building is beautiful – it's perfectly sited and an absolute gem for this community," she said. "I know there's been a lot of frustration... A lot of this is process and personalities, and unfortunate negativity that builds up around getting a job done."

But the new clubhouse is "fabulous," and the Sailing Club should be "proud of it," Kennedy added.

"I think the town on the whole is going to be very supportive of getting the building up, occupied, and doing what it's supposed to be doing."

AROUND TOWN

School's in, please drive safely*Greetings

Hi there Cohasset, what's going on? As we head into the official first week of fall, the morning temps have let us know that summer is over. The great news is that we are so lucky to live where we do and are able to experience all the seasons, surrounded by such beautiful scenery that changes each day. Whether walking through the woods at Wheelwright or Wampatuck parks, riding bikes/jogging or walking past the beach or just enjoying the daily changing foliage, we can enjoy all seasons in a variety of ways. The views never get old and I know that I am constantly reminding myself to take it all in, stop and "smell the roses," (ocean, leaves, etc.) in our busy days and be thankful to have what we are surrounded by – it truly is a gift.

I had a message sent to this past week from a Cohasset grandmother who asked for a reminder message to be included in the column in regards to back-to-school safety. As we are all out and about, please slow down when driving and be even more cautious than usual for children walking, biking and for the buses as they go to/from schools, etc. Also remember to follow your school drop-off/pick-up procedures, using common sense and showing respect for others who are doing so, especially the bus drivers and staff members who are there each day to help. If you have any questions, suggestions or concerns, take a moment to share them with the appropriate school and work together to keep everyone safe.

The news this week is letting us know of some upcoming events in town. The next few months will become busier with the seasonal holidays, etc., so make sure to send in your info on all that is happening no later than 2 p.m., on Tuesdays. I will kick off the week with a great piece about a local young lady.

Vocal soloist

At Tanglewood, the BSO's annual season-closing all-Beethoven program featured the Choral Fantasy and his Ninth Symphony; what a thrill for so many to enjoy Meredith Hansen, 1993 CHS graduate, as one of the six vocal soloists! This was Meredith's Tanglewood debut; she also debuted at Carnegie Hall last season, unbelievable! Meredith's mother, Mary Ann Hansen, glowed with pride as she congratulated her daughter after the performance, as well she should. Meredith was also delighted to see Carolyn and Dick Horn and Regina and Gerald Schultz, former Cohasset residents, who were in attendance at the concert. Meredith reported that Mr. Jack MacInnis, Cohasset Choral Director Emeritus, had stopped by during rehearsals to wish her well. Congratulations, Meredith, and the best of luck to you in your future. Cohasset joins your Mom in her pride!

Opening Night

If you are looking to add some music to your lives, here is a way to do so. The Atlantic Symphony Orchestra, led by music director, Jin Kim, will present its Opening Night concert on Saturday, Sept. 27, at the Center for the Arts, 745 Washington St., Thayer Academy in Braintree. This year's season begins with three energetic masterworks: A virtuosic concert overture, a thrilling violin concerto and a triumphant symphony by Robert Schumann, with violin soloist, Kristin Lee. This experience is a nice one and you can grab some friends, get a sitter in place if needed and venture out for a musical night out of town. Tickets are $43 for adults/$38 for seniors and may be purchased online at www.atlanticsymphony.org or on the night of the performance at the Center for the Arts. Enjoy...

Welcome home

I would like to end this week's column with a Welcome Home message to one of Cohasset's young residents. Joseph Dietrich, age 5, and son of Heidi and Fran, recently underwent a terrifying ordeal at Boston Children's Hospital. A 10-hour surgery was needed to remove a large tumor from this very brave little man's brain and he was, (and still is) surrounded by love, prayers and thoughts of continued recovery. Joseph and his family have been in the thoughts/prayers of so many, from here in town as well as all over. He is now home recovering and growing stronger each day and the family would like to thank everyone for all the support you have given. We wish for good news in the days to come and hope that soon, little Joseph will be back to Kindergarten, sporting his handsome new haircut and ready to get back to being a healthy, happy little boy. For Heidi, Fran, brother, J.D., and sister, Kristina, please know how many are here for you all through prayers, thoughts and help with whatever you may need. (Sent to me from a friend in town.) It takes a village...

That's it for this week Cohasset. Send in all news, events and photos no later than 2 p.m., on Tuesdays. Email to: aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com.

LIFE AT CHS

Spinnaker staff gets to work

ASHLEY CURRAN

It's suddenly a lot colder around the hallways and just as CHS students were complaining of the heat, we now are complaining of the cold. Luckily for us upperclassmen, the senior cafeteria seems to be the warmest spot in the building. The funniest part of it all is that we think this is cold yet we forget what it feels like to be a Massachusetts native in the month of January (I'll keep you updated).

Overall, as I mentioned last week, the Lululemon pants and Frye boots are back in action at CHS signaling the descent into the colder darker months.

With the school year in its full swing, the school newspaper staff of The Spinnaker is making valiant efforts to solidify topics and unite the members for the first issue to be published around Halloween. Many are already excited to research new topics, to update the magazine and some have even begun writing. I love the enthusiasm and it will definitely make the editor-in-chiefs' jobs even more enjoyable when the due dates approach! Focusing on the town of Cohasset more closely than ever before, The Spinnaker will hopefully be relatable to the Cohasset student body. Although talk of adapting the paper to look and feel like a true newspaper, CHS students just could not give up the glossy pages and bright pictures of the magazine as it currently exists.

However, the articles will, of course, still be those as in the past of high intellect and intrigue.

In other news, our beloved Skippers lost a heartbreaking game on Friday under the lights to rivals in Scituate. While we justify to ourselves that the loss was due to home field advantage, the football team for sure will make it up, as they always do. On a happier note, playing Avon last Friday the girls soccer team received their first win of the season, hopefully setting them on a path of success we know the Lady Skippers have within them!

Next week CHS will be holding a meeting for seniors in order to learn about the application process and how "fun" it can be. While choosing potential colleges is exciting and nerve-wracking at the same time, actually applying will be an entirely different feeling. That being said, a variety of colleges have been, and will be visiting CHS in order to persuade even more students into applying to their prestigious institutions. Along with the senior meeting, the entire student body can look forward to Back to School Night when parents gather in masses in order to introduce themselves to each and everyone of their child's teachers.

That seems to be just about it for this week! Due to the exciting nature of CHS, I'm confident there will be just as many stories to recount next week.

Harvest bounty continues

Cohasset Farmers Market news

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Summer may be over, but the Cohasset Farmers Market is still open weekly this fall, through Thursday, October 16.

If you thought that the market slows down after Labor Day, think again! This is the harvest season and there is a lot to be found at the market, including all variety of late summer and early fall vegetables, homemade foods, meat, fish, eggs, condiments, sauces, herbs and handmade crafts.

Pick up a tasty treat or beverage while you're strolling through the market. Why not get a head start on some holiday shopping? There's something for everyone!

As summer comes to an end, so do some of our favorite vegetables and herbs. With a little forethought, however, you can preserve some of the bounty. How about making pesto and freezing it for winter use? You'll swoon over the fresh taste of basil in winter!

See the sidebar for a simple pesto recipe in which you can substitute any herb or leafy green or a combination (parsley, cilantro, mint, spinach, or Swiss chard) to replace the basil or mix with it.

Levesque of Scituate switched career tracks last year, retiring from a dental practice to start her own business. Focusing on the use of recycled items, she fashions jewelry, ornaments, mobiles and clothing from items like catalogs, paper, Keurig coffee cups, even wooden sticks.

Levesque likes to think of her work as "up-cycling," giving new life to old items. Her bead necklaces are made from recycled paper and catalogs, which she hand paints. Frequent customers are young girls and "young at heart" women.

Levesque's newest creation is the "Kitchen Witch" ornament, which, historically, is a good-luck piece for the home. The Sugar Beet owner said that she loves the Cohasset Farmers Market because it's a throwback to simpler times, when sellers and buyers had a

Native American culture shared

On Saturday, September 13, Cohasset commemorated Captain John Smith's landing at Cohasset Harbor 400 years ago, marking the European "discovery" of the town.

The Cohasset Historical Commission formed a subcommittee to plan the events of the day, and also ensure that Cohasset's native peoples, the Quonahassit Indians, were also acknowledged.

While Smith, portrayed by interpreter Joe Hamilton, made an epic entrance sailing into the harbor, Wampanoag Native Americans also paid tribute to the past.

Linda Coombs, Program Director of the Aquinnah Cultural Center, author, and historian from the Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head on Martha's Vineyard, spoke on the importance of commemorating Cohasset's first inhabitants.

"In any event that is about any early explorer, most certainly it is also equally about the Native people of the area that the explorer arrived in. John Smith, or whomever – Columbus, the Pilgrims, Verrazano, Pring – did not sail into empty lands that were void of people.

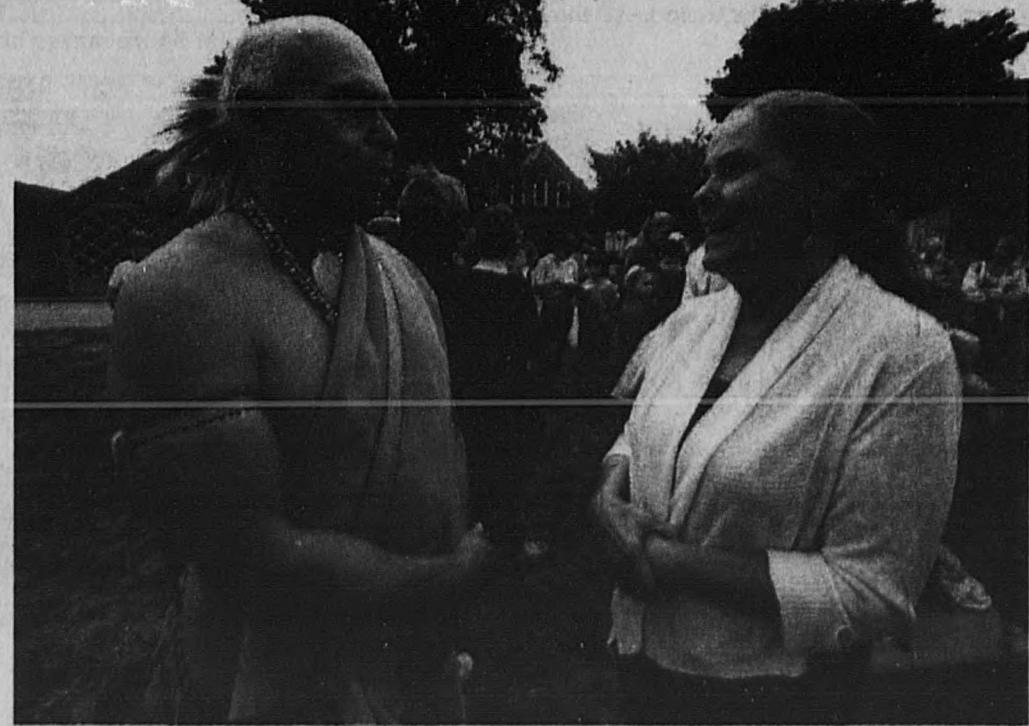

"In the history that is still taught, we read about 'vast wildernesses,' which gives the impression of no humans, but that is inaccurate history for several reasons. Native people were here when John Smith landed, so therefore they are an integral part of his experience here and need to be accounted as so."

"Any biases that Smith had need to be balanced against the reality of the true nature of our peoples and cultures. And that is something that has largely been omitted from the teaching of history, and it is time for America to add back in that which has been left out, and acknowledge the entire context of history, and then let that history be our teacher for how we proceed in the future."

EDITORIAL

Budget road map to follow

We have all seen the commercial with the long green line that warns us to stay on track toward retirement. The message there and with other advertisements is aimed at getting us to put some money away for later and that a little planning can go along way.

In another recent commercial on the same theme, there is a stack of huge dominoes that show if you start saving as little as about $50 a month at 25 years old or so, you should have a substantial amount of cash when you reach retirement age.

While the town of Cohasset is not going to retire – the message still applies. Planning and saving equal better finances for the community and result in better services for all.

To that end the Board of Selectmen with guidance from the Town Manager are updating a "Budget Message" from October 2013.

The message sets some goals and priorities that are worthy of debate if tweaking is needed and then – like the green line in that commercial – the message should translate into a road map to be followed.

Right at the top of the message is a commitment to building and maintaining fund balances in the stabilization and capital accounts. The town is also seeking to achieve and maintain an AAA bond rating. Higher bond ratings can translate into big savings on interest when the town has to borrow money.

The OPEB liability (health insurance for retirees) and road and building maintenance funds are also highlighted.

The message also includes establishing a Human Resources function for all town employees. When the selectmen went back to "school" last year at a workshop with Jeff Nutting, the Franklin Town Manager, to learn how to be better selectmen, essentially – he put HR at the top of the list.

He warned without a HR function the town opens itself up to myriad legal problems and potential costs.

The selectmen state in their Budget Message that the document should be used for guidance among all parties involved in developing the town's budget for the annual Town Meeting in the spring.

It is important that the town knows where it wants to go and follows a plan to get there. While budget issues don't always make compelling news stories – budget snafus or disasters always do!

We applaud the selectmen for their efforts to keep the town's budget on track.

High marks for harbormaster

The following letter to Town Manager Chris Senior was in selectmen's correspondence.

Mr. Senior:

My wife and I have sailed to most all the harbors in Massachusetts Bay, Buzzards Bay, Nantucket and Vineyard Sounds and nowhere have we met a more competent, knowledgeable, helpful or nicer Harbormaster than Lorri

Gibbons. We so much enjoy Cohasset and it is always a pleasure to visit and to see Lorri – she is a big part of what makes Cohasset Harbor so special.

You, and the people of Cohasset are very lucky to have Lorri as your Harbormaster – she is truly an asset and a terrific ambassador for Cohasset. Bill and Donna Zimmermann, 150 Lincoln St., Boston.

AUTISM LEGISLATION

Empowering those with developmental disabilities

Gov. Deval Patrick signed into law the Autism Omnibus Bill, now Chapter 226 of the Acts of 2014, on Aug. 5. His signature came on the heels of the House and Senate's unanimous approval of the final version of the bill, which will give families, advocates and affected individuals the additional tools and resources they need to deal with autism and other developmental disabilities.

"I am grateful to Speaker Robert DeLeo for his strong leadership resulting in this important Autism legislation," said Rep. Garrett Bradley. "I am proud to have led the effort to gain the support of my colleagues and am pleased that the Senate prioritized and supported this important legislation so that it could cross the finish line before the end of this legislative session. As well, special thanks go to the dedicated and hard-working members of the Autism Commission, led by former state Rep. Barbara L'Italien, whose recommendations are included in this legislation and which contributed to the successful passage of this bill."

"I'm proud to support this ground-breaking legislation to help families and individuals affected by autism. This law will make Massachusetts a national leader in providing autism services by establishing a permanent Autism Commission, requiring Mass Health to cover treatments for young people up to age 21, and allowing for the establishment of tax-free savings accounts to cover disability related expenses and education," said DeLeo, D-Winthrop. "I thank Governor Patrick, Senate President Murray, Leader Bradley and my colleagues in the House and Senate for their work on this law."

This omnibus legislation was filed to address the growing prevalence of autism spectrum disorders among children and young adults. According to a report released March 27 by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 1 in 68 U.S. children has an autism spectrum disorder, a 29 percent increase from 1 in 88 just two years ago.

Over the course of three years the previous Autism Commission studied the current delivery of services provided to those on the autism spectrum. In March 2013, they released a report that identified gaps in services and supports, and made recommendations to better serve the autism spectrum population. This legislation combined many of the Commission's recommendations.

Highlights of the bill include:

■ Establishes a permanent Autism Commission and provides for an Executive Director to assist the Commission in their work.

The 35 Commission members will identify services and supports necessary for individuals to achieve their full potential and make recommendations and monitor the implementation of policies impacting individuals with autism spectrum disorders. The bill directs the Commission to study and make recommendations on the long-term needs for housing and employment, in addition to the areas of study and recommendations previously covered by the commission.

■ Directs the Department of Developmental Services to include in its eligibility guidelines the federal definition of developmental disability for people on the autism spectrum and for those with Prader-Willi. DDS will no longer use an IQ-based eligibility requirement for adult services. This is a significant change and will expand DDS eligibility to all people with developmental disabilities who meet conditions for "substantial functional limitations."

■ Provides for health insurance coverage for medically necessary treatments for Mass Health recipients up to age 21. Eligible treatments include ABA behavior therapy and both dedicated and non-dedicated augmentative communication devices.

■ Public school special education teachers will have the opportunity to attain an "Autism Endorsement" certification – a concentration in autism coursework and training. This will ensure that the growing number of students with autism receive appropriate educational services to help them reach their potential. The endorsement will be discretionary.

■ Provides for the option of establishing a tax-free savings account patterned after the federal ABLE Act legislation, which would allow disabled families to save in a 529-style plan for disability related expenses. Savings could be used for education, medical and dental care, job training, housing, transportation, financial management, home improvements, funeral and burial expenses and other uses. Contributions to the account would grow tax-free; withdrawals for qualified disability expenses would be tax-free.

Bradley said, "Those on the autism spectrum are our sons and daughters, relatives, neighbors and friends. I am encouraged that the government stepped up and met the challenge of addressing their very real needs. At heart we are a generous and caring society and these services will enable people with autism to live as normal and productive life as possible."

CAMPAIGN VIEW

Politics, performance and substance

RICK HOLMES

Politics "is a funny blend of substance and performance art," Deval Patrick told me. "Journalists have to cover both and help the public discern between the two."

Patrick knows politics well: He's been elected governor of Massachusetts twice, campaigns across the country for Democrats and has lately acknowledged the slight possibility that he might harbor White House ambitions. He has also been known to have strong opinions about how the political process is served, and often distorted, by how the media cover it.

Patrick had called me from his car, on the day after Tuesday's primary elections. He was on his way out to Holyoke for a joint appearance with Martha Coakley, who he hopes will succeed him as governor. He wanted to talk about what a great governor Coakley would be, how she would take his administration's achievements "to the next level." And he wanted to take a few swipes at Charlie Baker, whom he defeated four years ago and who threatens to return the governor's office to Republican hands.

That's the performance part: the rousing speech he made introducing Coakley at the Democrats' victory party the night before, the warm embrace he gave the ticket at a unity breakfast in Boston that morning, the appearance in Western Mass. later in the day — and the calls to journalists.

Patrick's is a hard act to follow, and nobody thinks Coakley is in the same league when it comes to performance, whether the audience is in a living room or a huge convention center. So the script calls for Patrick to lend his popularity to Coakley's cause, as a member of the supporting cast, an endorser, or maybe a prop. So where's the substance?

The primary campaign was almost all performance. Coakley and Baker have spent the last year introducing the characters they are playing this time around. Baker is nice-guy Charlie: tolerant, bipartisan and moderate, not the hard-edged conservative he played in 2010, when he bragged about how many state employees he would lay off. This time Coakley is warm, engaged, hard-working and humble, not the aloof, entitled candidate who lost to Scott Brown in 2010.

Patrick said he wants to talk substance, especially on economic development. His policies — a stress on education and investment in infrastructure and innovative industries — are working. Coakley will take them further, he said, continuing his life science and green tech initiatives, but adding a strategy for the "Gateway Cities" — a term of relatively recent vintage that refers to the places like Brockton, Fall River, Worcester, New Bedford and Springfield, where the rewards of the innovation economy have yet to materialize.

Baker has ideas on the economy as well: tax breaks for small businesses, an earned income tax credit for the working poor, better job training, more affordable higher education. Unlike most recent Republican candidates, he's been spending a lot of time in urban areas, listening as well as speaking.

Expanding prosperity to the corners of the Commonwealth the recovery has yet to reach is a worthy goal for the next governor. How to do it — with specific programs, not vague promises — is worthy of a serious, unsexy, public conversation.

The performance part of the job isn't without value. It offers tips about what a candidate really cares about — or at least what he or she wants to be perceived as caring about. Persuasion is a skill successful leaders must have, and a popular mandate is something an effective governor needs. Campaigns must be heavy on performance art.

But the press must do more than criticize the acting, and the voters must demand more than smiles and platitudes. It's not enough to vote based on which candidate you'd like to share a beer with, or whose speaking style is easier to listen to.

These candidates aren't performers on reality TV, some of which we'll be voting off the island on Nov. 4. Beginning Jan. 1, the ones we choose will be responsible for making decisions that could touch the lives of every Massachusetts resident: decisions about schools, taxes, jobs and the support our cities and towns need to achieve community goals.

Considering the turnout Tuesday — just under 17 percent — it's a good thing Campaign '14 isn't a TV show. It would already have been cancelled. So let's demand the candidates — in every race, not just governor — put some substance into their performances. I'd happily trade a little entertainment for a clearer idea of what we're getting for our votes.

Seeking each harbor or river like here of the Quonahasit

By Captain John Smith

Greetings to ye of London, long rocky place, land of the Quonahasit peoples.

As a Cartogpher and explorer, I seek each harbor or river like here of the Quonahasit. And the Charles, several leagues to the North in the Massachusetts or Plimouth, land of the Acomack, an industrious people, five Leagues to the South. One hopes it shall be a great river long sought by mariners, that must surely be the passage to Asia and the Pacific and South Seas that lay surely but Thirty or Forty Leagues to the west.

We found the people in these parts very kind; but in their fury, no less valiant. For upon a quarrel we had with one of them, he only with three others crossed this harbor to the rocks whereby we must pass; let fly their arrows for our shot, till we were out of danger.

For here, you see, is great bounty of fish. The greatness of the timber, the birds and beasts for the hunt is great, the gardens and corn aplenty and a moderate temper of the ayre.

And of all the four parts of the world I have yet seen, could I have means but transport a colonie, I would rather live here than anywhere.

And here in New England, Virginia, Florida of Spain to the south and Canada of New France to the North is more land than all the people in Christendome can manure, and yet more to spare than all the natives of those countries can use and cultivate.

With all this bounty, And here are no hard landlords to racke us with high rents or extorted fines to consume us, no tedious pleas in law to consume us with their many years disputation for Justice: no multitudes to occasion such impediments to good orders as in popular States. So freely hath God and his Majstey besowed those bleffing on them that will attempt to obtain them, as Heere in New England every man may be master and owner of his owne labor and land; or the Greatest part in a small time.

If hee have nothing but his hands, he may set up this trade; and by industrie grow rich; If he have but the taste of virtue, and magnanimite, what to such a minde can be more pleasant, Than planting and building a foundation for his posterite, by god's blessing and his own industrie, without prejudice to any.

Long live the King

Whose child will be the hero?

JOHN MCSHEFFREY

Since I started sharing thoughts from the porch every few weeks, I've received requests from people about various topics to write about. While some of the suggestions have been fun, most have been about issues that are of concern to the person making the suggestion. What has shocked and disturbed me is that the number one suggestion (by quite a margin) has been about bullying. While I believe that Cohasset is likely ahead of other towns with regards to dealing with bullying, it's an issue worth addressing.

Bullying is an epidemic that has been going on since the beginning of time. It comes in all different forms and bullies are not bound by age, sex or beliefs. The bottom line is, bullying is a universal problem but it's most impactful on children, which is the focus of my article. Not every disagreement or bout of teasing should be categorized as bullying. Kids need to be allowed to grow and learn boundaries, but there's a recognizable and obvious difference between "kids being kids" and bullying. Stopbullying.gov defines bullying as an "unwanted, aggressive behavior among school aged children that involves a real or perceived power imbalance. The behavior is repeated, or has the potential to be repeated, over time."

According to a report from the National Center for Education Statistics and Bureau of Justice Statistics, close to 30 percent of students have been victimized by bullies. The report states, "most of the students in the study reported name calling as the most prevalent type of bullying, followed by teasing, rumor-spreading, physical incidents, purposeful isolation, threats, belongings being stolen and sexual harassment." Unfortunately it's also reported that teens who are consistently bullied are more likely to commit suicide or retaliate violently. Suicide is the third leading cause of death in young people and 75 percent of the school shootings across the country are related to bullying.

People impacted by bullying can be broken into three groups; the' victim, the bully and the bystander. Sadly, those who are bullied and their families know exactly which group they fit into. Equally as sad is the level of denial many of those who bully have; kids and parents alike, deny accountability even when the evidence firmly shows otherwise. This article isn't for the bullies; I don't think there is a single thing that I can write that will help them to realize that their actions are hurtful to others. This article is for the third group, the bystanders.

Bystanders are those who witness or know about acts of bullying and do nothing; most of those impacted by bullying fall into this group. A number of distraught parents have shared with me stories of their kids who have not only been bullied, but have had kids who they considered friends stand around and do nothing. In many cases the feeling of abandonment in a time of need is as painful as the act inflicted upon them.

Statistics show that close to 60 percent of bullying cases are stopped within 10 seconds if someone intervenes, indicating in many ways that those who bully are fearful of being un-liked. Seventy percent of teens have seen bullying occur in their schools, but how many of them have stepped up and done anything about it? Let's face it, most are bystanders because it's really hard to do otherwise.

Standing up to someone who is perceived to be bigger and stronger is intimidating; it's even more intimidating when the perpetrator may be a friend. You know what else is intimidating to a student? Math. If providing additional support to master the Pythagorean Theorem is the norm today, shouldn't providing guidance to encourage students to do what's right to help protect their peers be as well?

I'm in no way advocating we encourage kids to resort to fistcuffs or to put themselves in harm's way; rather that they're coached that when they see a bullying situation they should firmly state their displeasure or at least inform a teacher, a parent or an authority figure who will help.

A hero doesn't need a costume, a cape or even need to be noticed. Being a hero is a choice, perhaps a difficult choice but it's the right choice and will mean a world of difference to a kid in need. So the question we need to ask ourselves as parents is, "have we let our children know that they have our support and encouragement to be that hero?" If the answer is no or we're unsure, we need to take a few minutes to share with them that they can and should make a difference.

Bullies will continue to be bullies going forth, but with the right coaching and encouragement, bystanders have the opportunity to be defenders. My child the defender has a much better ring to it than my child the bystander.

I really appreciate people coming up, mentioning that they're reading the articles and providing suggestions on things to write about. Here's hoping that this issue of bullying is minimized and people request that I tackle other topics, such as the much needed Halloween tax credit for Fairoaks residents.

As always, thanks for reading. Information from the National Center for Education Statistics, NoBullying.com and StopBullying.gov were used in this piece. I recommend taking a moment to look at these sites for further information.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week. Beacon Hill Roll Call has obtained the 2014 official list from the state treasurer's office of the "per diem" travel, meals and lodging reimbursements collected by the Legislature's 40 state senators from January 1, 2014 through September 1, 2014. The list reveals that senators collected a total of $55,891.

Under state law, per diems are paid by the state to senators "for each day for travel from his place of residence to the Statehouse and return therefrom, while in the performance of his official duties, upon certification to the state treasurer that he was present at the Statehouse." These reimbursements are given to senators above and beyond their regular salaries.

The amount of the per diem varies and is based on the city or town in which a senator resides and its distance from the Statehouse. The Legislature in 2000 approved a law doubling these per diems to the current amounts. The payments range from $10 per day for senators who reside in the Greater Boston area to $90 per day for some Western Massachusetts lawmakers and $100 per day for those in Nantucket. Senators who are from areas that are a long distance from Boston's Statehouse often collect the highest total of annual per diems.

Some supporters of the per diems say the system is fair and note the rising costs of travel, food and lodging. They argue many legislators spend a lot of money on travel to Boston and some spend the night in Boston following late sessions. Others say that some legislators accept the per diem but use all of the revenue they receive to support local nonprofit causes. They say that not taking the per diem would leave that money in the state's General Fund to be spent on who knows what.

Some opponents argue most private sector and state workers are not paid additional money for commuting. They say the very idea of paying any per diem is outrageous when thousands of workers have lost their jobs and homes and funding for important programs has been cut. Others say the per diem is especially inappropriate given the recent 3-cent-per-gallon hike in the state's current 21-cent-per-gallon gas tax and the creation of automatic gas tax hikes by linking the tax to the U.S. Consumer Price Index.

The 2014 statistics indicate that 12 of the state's 40 senators have received reimbursements ranging from $864 to $7,200, while 28 senators have so far chosen not to apply for any money. State law does not establish a deadline that senators must meet in order to collect the per diems.

The senator who received the most per diem money in 2014 is Benjamin Downing (D-Pittsfield) who received $7,200.

The other four senators who received the most are Sens. Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst), $6,420; James Welch (D-Springfield), $4,026; Donald Humason (R-Westfield), $4,026; and Richard Moore (D-Uxbridge), $2,520.

SENATORS' 2014 PER DIEMS

The dollar figure next to the senator's name represents the total amount of per diem money the state paid him or her in 2014. The number in parentheses represents the number of days the senator certified he or she was at the Statehouse during that same period. Senators who have not requested any per diems have "0 days" listed. That is not meant to imply that these senators didn't attend any sessions but rather that they chose not to request any per diems.

WELDING SAFETY (S 2368) - The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill creating a special commission to study welding regulations in Massachusetts and report back to the Legislature by June 1, 2015. The legislation was prompted by the spring deaths of Back Bay firefighters Edward Walsh and Michael Kennedy, who perished while fighting a fire that was reportedly caused by welders working on a building next door to the brownstone in which they perished. The commission would study current regulations and recommend whether new ones are warranted.

PRISONERS AND MENTAL HEALTH (H 4367) - The House gave initial approval to a bill to study the feasibility of creating a new facility to provide evaluation, care and treatment of mentally ill persons in the criminal justice system who are determined by a court to require care in a medium-security setting.

Supporters said a recent study noted that for some mentally ill prisoners, the maximum-security setting of Bridgewater State Hospital is appropriate. They noted that for others, like pre-trial defendants who are charged with but not yet convicted of a crime, a secure hospital outside of a prison might provide a more therapeutically appropriate environment. They noted the state does not have a facility capable of treating individuals who require mental health treatment and clinical assessment in a medium-security setting.

REP. CALTER GETS NOD FROM BOTH PARTIES - Rep. Thomas Caltor (D-Kingston), currently serving his eighth year in the House, is "running against himself" in November. In an interesting turn of events, Caltor not only won the Democratic primary where he was unchallenged on the ballot but also was the victor in a write-in campaign on the Republican ballot. His name will appear only once on the ballot but will have the designation "Democrat/Republican" next to his name.

No one had filed the required 150 signatures to appear on the Republican primary ballot. Two newly converted Kingston Republicans, Bradford Randall and Peter Boneck, mounted a write-in campaign to get the GOP nomination and face Caltor on the ballot in November. Some of Caltor's supporters mounted a campaign to write his name in on the GOP side. Caltor won with 164 write-in votes, besting 110 for Randall and 106 for Boneck.

MASSACHUSETTS RESIDENTS CAN NOW BUY PEPPER SPRAY - A little-noticed part of the gun bill recently signed into law by Gov. Deval Patrick allows Massachusetts consumers over 18 to purchase self-defense sprays like Mace and pepper spray without a Firearms Identification (FID) card. Prior to implementation of the law on August 13, Massachusetts was the only state that required an FID card to carry these sprays. Now the buyer can purchase the spray just by showing his or her license. Individuals between the ages of 15 and 18 must still have a valid FID card to purchase the self-defense spray.

Only licensed firearms or ammunition dealers are authorized to sell the spray. Will that add to a bump in the number of outlets asking to be a licensed dealer? During a briefing of local officials at the Statehouse, Elisabeth Ryan of the Executive Office of Public Safety said, "We don't know if that's going to happen, but depending on what the demand is, we might see businesses like CVS looking for ammunition licenses."

Many people are asking whether they can now legally buy pepper spray online. Terrel Harris, spokesman for the governor's Executive Office of Public Safety and Security, tells Beacon Hill Roll Call, "The simple answer is 'no.' For a Massachusetts resident to purchase self-defense spray, it must be from a Massachusetts firearms or ammunition dealer. One of their license requirements is that sales be conducted at a specific physical business address within the Commonwealth. Online sales would not be legally possible."

COMMUNITY GARDEN CLUB

Beautifying the pavilion for reenactment

The Community Garden Club learned of the festivities surrounding the 400th anniversary of Captain John Smith's landing in Cohasset at its first board meeting for the 2014-2015 year on Tuesday, Sept. 2. The Community Garden Club was one of several organizations that were approached for funds to help with the cost associated with the celebration. The board embraced the idea of the celebration and welcomed the opportunity to partner with other community organizations to make the commemorative ceremony a success.

One of the major costs involved beautifying the area where Captain John Smith had landed and would land again in a reenactment of the event that occurred 400 years ago. The garden club chose to beautify the area around the pavilion by planting a garden. The board voted to provide the necessary money for plants, soil and mulch. The garden was then designed and planted by Barbara Dillon, a long-time Community Garden Club member.

Fortunately, the weather cooperated on the day of the reenactment. A refurbished pavilion, a new garden and a new plaque commemorating the 2014 event greeted the present day Captain John Smith. Hopefully, this small, newly beautified area in Cohasset will be enjoyed by residents and visitors to the town for many years to come.

BOYS SOCCER

Skippers turn corner

Defending champs finding their form

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

The season didn't start out so well for the Cohasset boys, but then again, they were up against the best team in the South Shore League.

After the 5-0, season-opening loss to Norwell, the Skippers have picked up the pace and have started to show signs that should bring the defending Division 4 South Sectional champs back to the postseason.

"We're seeing now flashes of consistency, but we're also seeing flashes of inexperience," Cohasset Head Coach Jim Willis said. "I feel we have five or six kids who are on the verge of breaking out and scoring. Once we have that, I think we'll become a consistent team."

The Skippers quickly put the loss to Norwell behind them and promptly won two straight, beating Carver, 3-0, and Sandwich, 3-1. They opened the week with a devastating loss to Abington. Fifteen minutes into the second half, junior Matt Legge put his team ahead, 1-0, and it appeared the Skippers were on their way to their third straight win. But Abington countered with two goals in the final minute to take the win.

"It was a heartbreaker. It was really tough," Willis said. "Hopefully we'll learn from it. After the game, the captains talked to the team and said if we're going to have a meltdown, we're glad it's now. They're a fun, special group of kids. I think we'll bounce back."

The Skippers, who start three sophomores and a freshman, have benefitted from the return of four-year starters Patrick Federle (keeper), Teddy Craven (center mid) and Sam Morris (center mid).

"They were valuable pieces on last year's team," Willis said. "We have a very talented group of kids."

Craven struck for two goals in the win over Sandwich. Freshman Cam Pattison scored his first varsity goal, which held up to be the game-winner.

The Skippers have their work cut out for them in the immediate future, taking on Cardinal Spellman Friday and Rockland Monday.

Cohasset braces for Rockland

Looks to bounce back from Scituate loss

Staff Reports

The Skippers would like nothing more than to continue their recent dominance of Rockland, not to mention get back on track after suffering a 42-26 loss to Scituate, their third straight defeat at the hands of the Sailors.

Friday night, the Skippers host Rockland, a team coming off a 14-0, season-opening win over Plymouth South. Since 2010, the Skippers have won three of four against the Bulldogs. Their only loss during that span came in 2010 at home, a 9-8 loss. Last year, the Skippers beat the Bulldogs, 34-13, and in 2012, they came away with a 19-8 win. In 2011 at Rockland, the Skippers won, 17-12.

In last week's loss to Scituate, on the first play from scrimmage, Cohasset's Brett Dooley took a pitch from quarterback Danny Axelson and hit Mike Lund with a 63-yard scoring pass on a halfback option play. Henry Butenschoen's PAT made it 7-0 Cohasset. Nick Hall had scoring runs of 1 and 11 yards for Cohasset (1-1), which played without star running back Cole Kispick. Axelson also scored on a 2-yard run.

"The first play was nice,"

Skippers coach Pete Afanasiw said. "But I knew we were in for a long battle. We got behind in the second half, but I saw no signs of quitting."

BAA HALF MARATHON

Cohasset resident running for cancer care and research

On Oct. 12, Daniel Evans from Cohasset, will be running in the 14th annual B.A.A. Half Marathon presented by Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and the Jimmy Fund, as a member of the official Dana-Farber team.

More than 570 Dana-Farber team members will raise awareness and at least $750 to support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber. Dana-Farber and the Jimmy Fund have partnered with the B.A.A. in the Half Marathon for 12 years. During this time, runners on the Dana-Farber team have raised more than $4 million to fuel lifesaving discoveries. To support a runner in the B.A.A. Half Marathon, go to www.Run-DanaFarber.org.

"We are thrilled to see veteran teammates and new runners alike join our team in the Half Marathon this fall," said Jack Fultz, Dana-Farber's training advisor and 1976 Boston Marathon men's champion. "We look forward to an exciting race day that will not only challenge our runners but impact the fight against cancer through their dedication to fundraising for the Jimmy Fund."

The 13.1-mile rolling course is an out-and-back loop that runs along the Emerald Necklace park system. It will begin and end in White Stadium in Boston's Franklin Park. The event attracts a field of more than 8,000 runners, including world-class athletes.

The race is one of three annual fundraising events that are part of the longstanding partnership between the Boston Athletic Association and Dana-Farber. The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk is the only walk sanctioned to take place along the historic Boston Marathon® route, and the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge (DFMC) fields a team of Dana-Farber runners who participate in the Boston Marathon each April.

To learn more about running for Dana-Farber or to support a runner, visit www.RundanaFarber.org. If you have registered to run the B.A.A. Half Marathon and would like to fundraise for Dana-Farber, call the Dana-Farber Running Programs office at (617) 632-1970 or (800) 551-7036.

INSIDE THE 6 | SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Cohasset boys, girls look to crack top six

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

What a difference a week makes. There are several changes, including the biggest jump in the history of Inside the Six. On both sides combined, four teams drop out of the poll, and nine teams move up at least one spot.

A new element was added to Inside the Six last week. We will have one boys and one girls player of the week each week, so send your nominations to me by Sunday morning at rwood@wickedlocal.com or tweet them to me @ RWSports. Here are the week one rankings, based on games played from Sept. 8-14.

BOYS

1 BRAINTREE: No team has ever gone from unranked to the top spot, but after a perfect week (3-0 win over Dedham, 1-0 victory against Newton North), the Wamps find themselves at No. 1. The Wamps, who came into the week at 3-0-1, have only conceded two goals in four games.

2 SILVER LAKE: After holding the top spot going back to last fall, the Lakers drop one after a deceiving week. Sure, they had two wins, beating Whitman-Hanson (2-0) and Hingham (3-0), but it took them until the 76th minute to score against W-H, a team they should've put away early. The Lakers are 4-0-1.

3 DUXBURY: Like I said last week, if the wins keep coming, the Dragons will eventually get out of that No. 4 spot, and with a 2-0 victory over Whitman-Hanson and a 7-2 win at Plymouth North, they upped their record to 3-0, having only allowed two goals on the season.

4 PEMBROKE: Following a week that saw them tumble from No. 2 to No. 5, the Titans climb back up the ladder. A 9-0 win over Middleboro came just days after a decisive, 5-0 victory against a strong Scituate team.

5 WEYMOUTH: The Wildcats (2-2-1) certainly had a productive week, beating Norwood, 3-1, after losing, 2-1, to unbeaten Framingham, but they drop two spots. This is due in large part to the results produced by the four teams ahead of them.

6 HANOVER: Welcome to the top six, Hanover. The Indians make their 2014 debut in the rankings after an impressive week, one that churned out a 6-2 win over Middleboro and a 2-0 victory against North Quincy to push their record to 2-1.

ON THE BUBBLE: Scituate, Norwell, Hingham

WEEK 1 RANKINGS: 1. Silver Lake, 2. Scituate, 3. Weymouth, 4. Duxbury, 5. Pembroke, 6. Norwell

PLAYER OF THE WEEK: Jacob Higgins (Pembroke) — The senior forward accounted for more than one-third of his team's goals last week, scoring a brace against Scituate and a hat trick (with one assist) against Middleboro.

GIRLS

1 SCITUATE: The Sailors retain the top spot after going 2-0 on the week, picking up wins over Pembroke (5-0) and Plymouth South (4-0), and they don't appear to be letting up.

2 ROCKLAND: The Bulldogs make history, earning their highest-ever ranking Inside the Six, and it's a well-deserved bump up to No. 2. The 'Dogs easily handled Maspee, 8-0, and then came back the next day and beat West Bridgewater, 2-0, to improve to 3-0, having conceded no goals as of Monday.

Cohasset's Megan Fitzgerald and the Skippers look to break into the top six in this year's rankings. WICKED LOCAL

3 HINGHAM: From the bubble to No. 3, Hingham makes the biggest jump on the girls' side. A 6-1 win over Quincy and 7-1 victory against Silver Lake sent the team's record to 3-0. Hingham has only allowed two goals in three games.

4 BRAINTREE: Up one from No. 5, the Wamps continue to impress. They earned a hard-fought, 1-1 draw with defending Division 1 state champions Newton North, a team that has only one loss over the last two years. The Wamps (3-0-1) also tied Dedham, 0-0, last week.

5 WEYMOUTH: The Wildcats also jump up one spot after two commanding victories. They started the week with a 5-1 win over Norwood and capped it with a 3-1 victory against Framingham. The 'Cats will be tested this week, but they appear up for the challenge.

6 PLYMOUTH NORTH: The Eagles debut in the rankings for the first time this season. This comes on the heels of a 1-1 draw against Duxbury. The Eagles (2-1-1 as of Monday) began the week with a 3-0 win over Quincy.

ON THE BUBBLE:

Norwell, Duxbury, Marshfield

WEEK 1 RANKINGS: 1. Scituate, 2. Marshfield, 3. Rockland, 4. Duxbury, 5. Braintree, 6. Weymouth

PLAYER OF THE WEEK:

Aly Reynolds (Weymouth) — One of the top scorers in the state - already Reynolds tallied six goals and an assist in two games for the Wildcats last week. She has 10 goals on the season heading into the week.

The Inside the 6 – Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@wickedlocal.com.

WATD RADIO

'It's all about the music,' DJ says

By Caitlin Flaherty
cflaherty@wickedlocal.com

Ever since he was a kid, David Wolfson, of Hanover, knew exactly what he wanted to do in life.

Wolfson was born to play music on the radio and nothing was going to stop him—not even his learning disabilities.

"Sometimes people with special needs think they can't do some things, and even people who don't have special needs, think they can't do some things," Wolfson said. "But they can."

And Wolfson is living proof.

Today, the 40-year-old has a show on 95.9 WATD FM, owns a DJ business and runs an online radio station.

"It's all about the music," Wolfson said. "And I love what I do."

As a youngster, Wolfson would create his own radio shows, using two boom boxes, one to record his voice and the other play music.

Wolfson's mom Naomi Miller was supportive of her son, but had no idea his dream would one day come true.

"I would buy microphones, boom boxes, and more boom boxes every time one would break. He was always doing his own shows, ever since he was 8," Miller said. "At the time, it was funny when he was so young."

However, as he got older, Wolfson never outgrew his passion for the radio. He attended school at the Cardinal Cushing Center in Hanover, which he credits for giving him the tools and the confidence necessary to keep pursuing his passions.

While a student at the school, he went on a tour of the WATD radio station in Marshfield. WATD President and owner Edward Perry said the station often gives tours to schools and local youth programs.

"Wolfy was one of the kids on the tour," Perry said. "He came up to me and said 'I just love the business, I really want to be in this business.'

Could I be an intern?"

Perry said they liked his enthusiasm and decided to give Wolfson a shot.

"If you are getting a kid from Harvard and a kid from the Cushing School, you are going to look at them different. But, you shouldn't look at where a person came from, but what they can do," he said, noting he doesn't care what anyone's race, religion, creed, or disability is as long as they can put on a show.

"You never know until you take a chance on someone."

Wolfson started out as the assistant producer for "Monday Night Talk" with State Senator Bob Hedlund.

Some nights when Hedlund did not have a guest, producer Larry Nelson would go on the air and talk with Hedlund. However, one night Nelson had to leave to fix some technical problems elsewhere in the studio.

"So he turned it over to Wolfy," Perry said. "That's how he got his shot."

Hedlund, not thinking anything of it, started asking for Wolfson's opinion on state laws and regulations—and Wolfson didn't skip a beat, Perry said.

"I thought who am I listening to, Walter Cronkite?" Perry said. "It was then we realized we had all sorts of potential with David."

Wolfson was given his own show, and 12 years later, he still deejays the show on Thursday and Friday mornings from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m. and on Saturday mornings from 3 a.m. to 6:30 a.m.

Wolfson couldn't be happier.

"I love what I do," he said. "Life is too short. You have to do what you love."

Perry said Wolfson's enthusiasm is evident across the airwaves.

"He's been a real success story here," Perry said. "He's a nice kid, he enjoys the place. We get a lot of good comments from listeners. A lot of people said he sounds like a friend to me, and I think Wolfy sounds like a friend to his group of listeners."

One of those listeners, Patrick Ryan, of Hingham, said he was drawn to the high-energy deejay who plays a lot of upbeat oldies tunes.

Ryan travels from work in Attleboro to his home in Hingham at night and needed something to keep him from falling asleep at the wheel. Coffee wasn't working, and that's where Wolfson came in, he said.

"His energy, his enthusiasm keeps me awake," he said. "I always say he keeps me awake.... and alive."

Ryan said he called in many times from the road with song requests and the two became fast friends.

When Wolfson started his own DJ business called "DJ Wolfson on the Go Productions," Ryan hired him to play at his father's birthday party.

From there, the two became better friends and Ryan even appeared on Wolfson's WATD show as a guest.

Like Wolfson, Ryan had grown up wanting to be a radio DJ, and also recorded his own radio shows using boom boxes.

"David and I come from the same era," he said, noting that they both grew up watching WKRP in Cincinnati, a television comedy show about a fictional radio station. "I always wanted to be Venus Flytrap and he's Johnny Fever."

Ryan has a passion for old love songs and dreamed of having his own show where he could play the classics.

He believes strongly in the power of love.

"Most people who listen to love songs are heartbroken," Ryan said. "These songs help you heal. Or maybe you are not heartbroken. Maybe you are in love and these songs make you feel happy."

Now, his new friend Wolfson, is giving Ryan a shot.

commercial-free 24 hours a day. He features Ryan's show "Together" with Patrick Ryan on Monday and Tuesday nights from 7-10 p.m.

The three-hour long shows are recorded ahead of time and Wolfson's girlfriend Sarah Snell helps to program them.

Although Wolfson is busy with his radio show and his new job at Shaws in Hanover, he still makes it a point to visit schools, especially those with special needs students.

He talks about the importance of staying positive and upbeat and about looking to the future instead of the past. But, most importantly, he talks about dreams.

"It doesn't matter if you are special needs, if you have a dream, you can make it happen," Wolfson said. "Life is too short not to go after your dreams."

Library space is great for yoga

By Linda Fechter
Special to the Mariner

Amanda Merk moved to Cohasset two years ago. A career librarian, she began substituting in the Cohasset Public Library and immediately thought library patrons and residents of Cohasset might enjoy meditation and yoga in the beautiful, quieting space of the library. She has been practicing yoga for many years and recently completed a 200 hour Yoga Alliance Teacher Certificate. Merk has now combined her love of the library with her yoga practice by teaching free community yoga classes in the meeting room at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

"The Cohasset Library is a positive space, full of great energy and warmth," says Merk. "Patrons visit the library not only to choose books, there is also a sense of community-building, of connecting with the librarians and neighbors."

Merk wanted to offer mindfulness, movement and meditation in the community space. She has been teaching yoga and meditation at the library since May. Her classes have welcomed Baby Boomers, senior citizens, pregnant women, veteran yoga students and even other yoga teachers as well as newcomers to Cohasset looking to make connections and meet new friends.

Merk's classes incorporate music, movement, pranayama — control of the breath — or breathing practices, meditation and relaxation.

The last two Saturdays of the month will be "Yoga on the Chair" with extended meditation time. This specific yoga has been requested by several seniors who frequent her classes. September classes are Saturday morning, September 20 and 27 at 10:30 a.m. October yoga classes will be held on Sundays October 19 and 26 from 3 to 4 pm. All levels are welcome. No prior yoga experience is necessary. $5 suggested donation benefits the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

The Friends support the Mission of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library through ongoing fund-raising and advocacy to enhance library resources and programming and to provide community outreach services including: the Homework Center; Cohasset Reads Together; and all Children's programming including Mama Steph and "Eyes on Owls."

The Friends also fund adult programming such as the Great Decisions discussion group, author visits, genealogy classes, memoir-writing workshops, resume-writing classes, monthly Fridaymorning movies and Museum Passes.

GIMME SHELTER

You will love our Lucy

By Casey Fredette

I imagine, if you will, one of the most important things to you was your independence. Easy - yes? Now imagine you're surrounded everywhere you look by others. How pleasant and happy would you be? Not very, one would guess. Sweet Lucy thankfully has kept her positive attitude going. It's surprising enough she's stayed so affectionate toward people, more so when you learn what a disappointment humanity has been for her. At only two years old Lucy was enjoying life, largely thanks to her being an only cat in her home. She was comfortable and secure; everything was how she wanted it. Obviously that didn't last. Her owners had to move and instead of taking her with them — they left her behind. They didn't find her a new home or bother to place her in a shelter; they just left her behind on her own.

Lucy is a cat that makes you happy to be in animal rescue. So often rescue work opens a window to the worst people are capable of... the repetition of bad deeds, the ability to treat creatures who adore them maliciously. It can rip you apart, but ultimately the animals and their ability to love and trust in spite of the actions taken against them is astonishing. Lucy is a beautiful, all white spayed female; she enjoys being brushed, petting, and really most things that result in her receiving positive attention. Her only real dislikes seem to be other cats and wet food; both personal tastes. Lucy doesn't act negatively toward her roommates; she doesn't lash out at them or make trouble. Poor Lucy approaches her dislike

Bishop Dooher and the monks of Glastonbury Abbey at an outdoor Mass celebrating their 60th anniversary. COURTESY PHOTOS

Glastonbury Abbey celebrates anniversary

On Sunday, September 14th, the monks of Glastonbury Abbey celebrated their 60th year of "peace and prayer, a welcoming presence for all." Fair skies and 200 people graced an outdoor Mass on the Great Lawn of the Abbey, presided by Bishop John Dooher.

On Saturday night, a 60th anniversary dinner was celebrated at the South Shore Country Club with over 150 attendees who ate, danced and expressed gratitude for the Abbey. State Representative Garrett Bradley attended the event and presented Abbot Thomas with a Proclamation of Appreciation.

Glastonbury Abbey, a community of Benedictine monks was founded from a monastery in Wisconsin. The monks came to Hingham in August of 1954 and started adapting an old estate, with a massive stone tower on the property, into a monastic dwelling. The monks pray five times each day, and everyone, of all faiths, is invited to join them. The beautiful grounds, with many gardens and even a herd of goats, are open to the public for strolling and reflecting.

Glastonbury Abbey has come a long way in 60 years. Added to the monks' mission of prayer and hospitality for all, the monks now offer: a Glastonbury Abbey Institute laden with spiritual and cultural programs to enrich your mind and soul; a thriving retreat program; a bookstore and gift shop; Sunday Suppers for the disadvantaged; a Mass Guild spiritual enrollment program; a Bible/nature exploration camp for children; a community garden to share with the poor; 2 outdoor meditation stations — a labyrinth and a Peace Pole; a beautiful Conference Center, and lots of social events such as concerts, golf tournaments, garden tours, open houses, and more.

Abbot Tom and the monks are blessed to have a very dedicated and welcoming extended community who assist the monks in all they do. The monks encourage the public to come by and visit, and bring your friends! For further information visit: glastonburyabbey.org, or call 781-749-2155, x. 243.

Place a number in the empty boxes in such a way that each row across, each column down and each small 9-box square contains all of the

Level: Moderate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

SALOME'S STARS HOROSCOPE FOR WEEK OF SEPT. 22, 2014

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An offer to help with a stalled project should reassure you that you have a workable plan in spite of the problems in getting it up and running. The week's end brings more positive news.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A past problem about a workplace situation re-emerges early in the week. Talking things out helps ease tensions by midweek, but some hurt feelings could linger a few more days.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Optimistic aspects dominate your efforts. However, expect to confront some criticism, some of which might be valid, so keep an open mind. But overall, it's your views that will count.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Social interaction with new people, especially on the job, could be a bit strained in the early part of the week. But the awkwardness passes as you get to know each other better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Expect news about a follow-up to a workplace change that could make a difference in your career path.

Meanwhile, new friends widen the circle for all you Social Lions who love to party.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Enjoy your well-earned plaudits for a job well done. But be aware that some people might not share your colleagues' admiration, and you might have to work harder to win them over.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good week to recheck your probably already overlong "to do" list and decide what to keep and what to discard. Lose the clutter and focus your energy on what's really important.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to take a new perspective on what you've been offered. Expanding your view could help to uncover any pluses or minuses that weren't apparent at first.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Applying the usual methods to this week's unique challenges might not work too well.

Instead, use your creativity to find a way to resolve any impasse that develops.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) So what if fate throws some obstacles in your path this week? Just keep in mind that the sure-footed and resolute Goat can get past any barrier by focusing on the goals up ahead.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week calls for better communication with people in both your private life and the workplace. Start by asking questions, and then pay close attention to the answers.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Potentially beneficial workplace changes could be closer than you realize. Make sure you know what's going on so that you're not left high and dry when the good things happen.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're not timid about pushing to have your aims realized once you've set your mind to accomplishing your goals.
